U. S. Government Sends Note
Over Iron Guard Pogroms

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—The United States Government has expressed to the Rumanian Government its "indignation and shock" over the "unspeakable outrages" of the Iron Guard last month, Secretary of State Cordell Hull revealed in a letter to Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, in reply to the Congress' appeal for intercession with the Bucharist authorities.

"I need hardly tell you," Secretary Hull wrote, "this government looks with horror on atrocities of this sort and that it regards them as another manifestation of the unprecedented conditions that unfortunately now prevail in certain European countries. This government has brought to the attention of the Rumanian Government the indignation and shock with which the news of these atrocities was received by this government."

Veiled Mothers Fail
In Attempt To Inject
Bias Into Bill Hearing

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
WASHINGTON—An abortive attempt to inject anti-Semitism into Senate consideration of the Lend-Lease Bill was broken up when capitol police ejected Miss Mynnie Fisher of Milwaukee and several other members of the group of 250 describing themselves as "the veiled mothers" from the Capitol Building.

Previous to their ejection, a sizeable group of representatives of the protest delegation crowded into the Senate lobby bearing American flags. They heckled Senator Pepper of Florida and other senators with cries of "Why do you let Sol Bloom and his henchmen send our boys to war?"

While the leaders of two organizations, the Mothers' Crusade headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago and the Mothers' Mobilizing Against War headed by Miss Fisher, said the presence of the 250 women here was in the nature of a spontaneous protest, members of the rank and file were frank in admitting that the "crusade" had been organized by Father Charles E. Coughlin and Chas. E. Hudson of Omaha, a well-known anti-Semitic pamphleteer.

The organizations' headquarters at the Plaza Hotel here has been a distribution point for much anti-Semitic literature, including that authorized by Hudson. Most of the pamphlets and books being distributed at the headquarters dwell on the theme of "international Jewry's responsibility for the war."

Charles Cassell, 62, Is Taken By Death

Special
FORT WAYNE—Charles Cassell, 62, died at 1 a. m. last Monday, Feb. 10, at the Borges Hospital in Kalamazoo, Mich. He became ill about a week ago while in Kalamazoo. You'll find its SOFT AND QUIET RIDE

WE INVITE YOU to compare the ride of your present car, no matter what it is, with the ride of this year's Ford.

Never before in Ford history have we devoted so many improvements at once to producing increased comfort.

We lengthened both wheelbase and springbase. We designed entirely new bodies of greater length and width than ever before. Bodies with as much as seven inches added to seating width. Bodies with wider doors and bigger windows than ever.

Then we equipped this big 1941 Ford with softer "Slow-Motion" springs. With a new frame that is 100% more rigid. With improved shock absorbers. And with a perfected ride stabilizer for steadiness on turns and in high winds.

The result is a ride that many say is new for a car of any size!

AL SEGAL Speaks on Melvin

THE German refugee said yes, he knew Melvin. They were in the same battalion in the Spanish war. The last he saw of Melvin he was lying dead before a wall in a village in Spain. "I'll tell you the story," he said.

All of us knew Melvin from the time he was a small boy. When we heard the story we felt that when he stood against the wall in the village in Spain, Melvin considered his life well fulfilled and died joyously.

He was a boy who had wrestled with the meaning of existence and for a period of his life could find no sense in it. Once he tried to kill himself.

If he had been born in some Lithuanian village he would probably have been brought up in the Yeshivah and in the abstractions of the Talmud would have been happy all his days. He would have been sure of God and in Him would have found all the answers.

One guessed his was the soul of a mystic in the wrong place in a wrong time of the world. He was bewildered. He had come out of school—a most brilliant student—and had fallen into the depression. The breadlines were snaking around the blocks at the relief kitchens in all the cities.

It was a crazy world. It was so full of things to eat and wear but the thousands were going hungry and the wind of that winter was biting through the thin garments of the thousands. The furniture of people thrown out of their houses was piled up on the sidewalks of many streets.

Melvin in his personal life did not have to worry much about these things. There was always a place for him in his father's house and always enough to eat.

But this was his world and he could not separate himself from its pain. He had inherited it and must help to carry it.

Young men like him were in the breadlines, wanderers from town to town. From time to time one read of them in the papers: they fell off freight trains and were killed or their legs were ground off.

He himself could find no place in the world. He had grown up in the generation that thought it could see the dazzling promises of a bright new world. In the twenties the Jewish charities were thinking to what new occupations to apply their social zeal; for poverty seemed on the point of extinction, considering the way everything was so happily going. Youth was told to make himself ready by education to inherit the earth.

Melvin did not ask the world for anything special on account of his university degree. If his hands had been allowed only to dig a ditch! A ditch was socially useful; a ditch may contain a sewer pipe for social sanitation.

The time he had tried to kill himself he had decided that he was superfluous in the world and might as well get out of it. He was regretful about this lapse afterward: he had tried to separate himself from the pain of man and that was no way to do. He would have gone into the shelter of a grave and been safe from all the travail of the earth. This was no way to die.

If death is chosen voluntarily one's life should be dedicated nobly, he thought. To choose death only for the purpose of escape was not dying nobly. It was selfishness. If one chooses death one should die greatly; then it is worth dying.

Then life is fulfilled.

He was glad he had not died ignobly, running away from life.

After that his friends missed Melvin. He was one of those self-effacing people who aren't missed at once when they leave the scene. But in time it was being asked: What's become of Melvin? Had he managed to straighten out the dreadful tangle?

THEN it became known that he had gone to Spain to join the Republican army. The Spanish Civil War was going on and many a young American had died in it and many another was offering himself to fill up the gaps in the ranks of the American battalions.

Melvin had thought it all out: Spain was a small corner of the world but there, at least, youth with his own hands could take hold of things and do something about them. He could help put down the evil forces that then were taking their first steps to bestride the earth. He could help to set the foundations of a bright, new and more hopeful world. It wasn't like sitting home and seeing the injustice of breadlines and being unable to do anything about it.

Dying in Spain wasn't like living aimlessly in a life that didn't seem to have any termini. Yes, he might die in Spain but that would be all right, he thought.

Everyone must die some time—die miserably by disease, or by accident, or by one's own hand in a wretched escape from life. It was better dying to die living fully to the last minute, to die for the sake of something you believed in or for the sake of some bright dream you had. Life wasn't wasted and death wasn't wasted then.

[It was hard to think of Melvin being a soldier in a war. Melvin was more like one of those rapt boys who end up in the pulpits in Reform temples.]

The Spanish war came to an end and France was over Spain. Hitler's luftwaffe felt enriched by the experience it had acquired in the practice of bombing and slaughtering at Guernica. Mussolini's legions basked in the glory of victory over the Spanish Republicans, happy to forget Guadalupe.

Totalitarianism marched from Spain to Munich to Poland to Denmark to Norway to Holland to Belgium and France.

Two years had passed. Melvin hadn't come home from the Spanish war. From time to time someone or other asked: "What became of Melvin?"

Yes, the German refugee said, he remembered Melvin very well. He was that Jewish boy in his battalion. He himself had joined the Republican army thinking that in Spain he could help put down the evil thing that had started on its dreadful course by destroying Jews in Germany.

One day Melvin and two other soldiers were sent ahead of the battalion for reconnoitering duty in the neighborhood of a certain village. They did not come back.

Several days later the battalion advanced upon the village. It was deserted except for three youths who lay dead at the foot of a wall. One of them was Melvin. They had been captured and what had happened to them was plain enough: they had died at the wall by firing squad.

Ludwig Lewisohn spoke at the Temple Tuesday on the subject, "American Jewry, Its Task and Future." The talk was preceded by a dinner at the Roberts Hotel. Final preparations for a Washington birthday dance were made by the Beth El League at an executive committee meeting Monday. Herman Marx has returned from Miami Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gold and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Jasser have left for the same resort. Mrs. Edward Hollander is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Edward Hollander, Sr., and her niece, Miss Phyllis Hollander of Cleveland, O.

Mrs. Harry Pazol has returned from Chicago. Mr. William Perry, who is residing in Birmingham, Ala., returned to Muncie. From here both he and Mrs. Perry will leave for Chicago. Attending the Fort Wayne Junior League birthday ball were Bea and Sam Cossman, Benjamin Hertz, Bernard Freund, Morton and Tillie Standt and Burle and Sylvia Plank. Our sick list is rather long and we wish a quick recovery to Bea Hiller, Evylyn Berman, Fannie Hertz, Alice Novick and Marshall Cossman.

SHU SHAN SHAG SET
The Beth El Youth Group has planned a Shu-Shan Shag for Saturday night, March 8 at Beth El Temple. Burton Schwartz and Rosemary Freiburg are co-chairmen of the affair and will be assisted by Adele Gold, Sophie Gerson, Frieda and Becky Nichols, Paul Zick, Martin Prince, Mimi Bluestein, Abe Dobrow, Herb Larman, Mary Jane Falender and Beryl Madiel. WE'RE TELLING YOU

This time there's no maybe about it. Dr. Chaim Weizmann will be here before this shortest of months is over. . . . That full-page ad of the Protestant Digest's, which will appear in the New York Times by the time this column reaches you, is a corker. It asks the Christian world what Jesus would have said to the pogroms in Rumania. . . . For the sake of Orthodox Jews who like Chinese food one factory that prepares such delicacies as Chinese almond cakes, fried noodles, etc., has engaged a rabbi to see to it that everything in the place is kosher and parve.

SUR-PRIZE OFFER

We have the urge to ask our readers a question the answer to which we ourselves didn't know till the other day. It is: What masculine first name occurs most frequently in the whole world? To the first three readers who send in the correct answer we, in our turn, will send a copy of the late Dr. Emanuel Lasker's last book, "The Community of the Future."

STAGE AND SCREEN

To Curt Bois, the comedian who made such a hit in "The Lady in Question," is credited the remark that Hedy Lamarr "runs the gamut of emotions from A to X-stasy."

. . . Which reminds us to tell you about Jetta Goudal, whom some of you may remember as the Hedy Lamarr of the twenties. She dropped out of pictures when they began to talk—but she's one of Hollywood's favorite interior decorators nowadays. . . . If you're interested in theater decoration and such, be sure you get your copy of Mordecai Gorelik's "New Theaters and Old." . . . Did you know that Melvyn Douglas' father was the concert pianist Edouard Hesselberg? . . . A screen version of the life of George Gershwin is promised by Warner Brothers for this year. . . . "The Mechanical Heart" by Sam Behrman, which is opening late this month, may or may not turn out to be a box office success, but it is a significant play of our times. It opposes two philosophies—that of the late Ernst Toller, the German playwright who committed suicide a couple of years ago, and that of Colonel Charles Lindbergh. And, of course, the play is distinguished by the usual scintillating Behrman dialogue.

Silly questions are those to which you don't know the answers.

YELLOW JACKETS LEAD

As the Kirshbaum Center Intramural Basketball League went into its final stages, the leading Yellow Jackets defeated the White Sox by a score of 22-16. The Greenies defeated the Reds 31-26, clinching second place, and the Blues lost to the Cards 17-14. The final game in the regular schedule will be held this Sunday as follows: 1:30 p. m.—St. Louis Cardinals vs. Cincy Reds; 2:15 p. m.—Indianapolis Blue vs. Yellow Jackets, and 3:00 p. m.—Greenies vs. White Sox.

The playoffs will begin March 2 when the team in first place will play the team in 4th, and the second place winner will play the 3rd. The winners will meet March 9 for the championship to be held as part of the Maccabiad on that same day.

CLUB WANTS MEMBERS

All former members and any girls between the ages of 17 and 19, who would like to join the Sophisticated Deboniar Club, are invited to attend a meeting at 8 p. m. next Thursday at Kirshbaum Center.

Evalyn Pinkus Becomes Bride Of Chicago Man

Special
FORT WAYNE—Miss Evalyn Pinkus became the bride of Mr. Louis Skoff in a ceremony at 4 p. m. Sunday, at the Achduth Vesholom Temple, with Rabbi Frederic A. Doppelt officiating. Miss Pinkus is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Pinkus, and Mr. Skoff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Skoff of Chicago.

Miss Pinkus chose Mrs. Robert Miller of Milwaukee and Mrs. Seymour Pinkus of Indianapolis, her sister-in-law, for her matrons of honor. The Misses Lillian and Sara Skoff of Chicago, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Ruth Reed of Chicago, for her bridesmaids; Miss Beverly Pinkus of Milwaukee, her cousin, as flower girl, and Edward Hutner as the ring bearer. Mr. Skoff was attended by his brother, Mr. Maurice Skoff of Chicago, and the ushers were Mr. Seymour Pinkus of Indianapolis, brother of the bride; Mr. Sidney Sholenthal of Chicago, and Mr. Maurice Bernstein of Chicago.

Following the ceremony, dinner for the immediate families and close friends was served at the Fairfield Manor. Friends were invited to the ceremony at the Temple, but the reception which was held at the Manor was invitational.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Clara Pinkus, Mrs. Max Ancelovitz and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Pinkus of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lieberman, Miss Dora Lou Geiser, Mr. Philip Roth, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Tolcatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Suknoff, Mr. Charles Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Bernstein and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sarley and sons Vincent and Erwin of Chicago.

The young couple will make their home in Chicago, where Mr. Skoff is in the art department of the Calvert Liquor Distilleries.

Keep VITAMINS IN with Electric COOKING

Your care in selecting food for your family is wasted if you lose essential vitamins and minerals by improper cooking. That's why Electric cooking is health cooking. Food cooked in its natural juices retains healthful elements that are boiled out by other cooking methods. Cook for health . . . Switch to an Electric range.

Between You and Me

By BEN LEWIS

WHY?

The Muncie Beth-El Panthers arranged a return game with the Kelly Ice Co. five Wednesday and our correspondent, evidently having the initial game in mind, asks the questions, "Why?" The same correspondent reports that Don Gilinsky, home this week from the army, being stationed at Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio, says he "is looking better than ever." Does she means looking better or better looking.

NOTES

Joseph Bloch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bloch Sr., performed as soloist with the New York Civic Symphony Orchestra last Sunday. Pianist Bloch is fast climbing the heights to musical fame. At the Jewish War Vets' convention in Louisville last week-end, our own Paul Scharffin was approached by several Eastern delegations, we hear, to permit his name to be entered as candidate for the national commander of the organization. Rabbi Goldblatt was the principal speaker at the Lincoln Tea given at the First Baptist Church by the race relations department of the Indianapolis Council of Church Women. Mrs. Samuel Kominers was one of the hostesses.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

Fifteen members of the Gary B'nai B'rith bowling team braved the storms and went to Detroit for the national meet. High men, Milton Levenberg being in Florida and Dr. M. C. Marcus being unable to make the trip, the rest were good but not good enough. However, they were Louis Rosene, Louis Litz, Al Rissman, Al Reingold, Dave Lesser, Harold Goldberg, Dr. Adolph Goldstone, Bernard Friedman, Louis Rodin, Morris Wolfe, Isadore Zweig, Herbert Morris, Leo Rottenberg and Henry Manalan. Better luck next time, boys, and just keep on trying. During the absence of two Gary judges, Samuel S. Dubin and B. J. Laube are filling in. Abe Hyman led a delegation of Gary social workers to Indianapolis to plead for the welfare department.

"Jewish Education—To What End?" is the subject of an address to be given at the Sabbath Eve services at 8 o'clock tonight by Dr. Emanuel Gamoran, educational director of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Hosts for the religious services include Mesdames Sol C. Bodner, Ben X. Cohen, Maurice Goldblatt, Bernard Landman, Mildred Levey, Lewis J. Levy and Reuben Solomon.

Dr. Gamoran will be the discussion leader in an institute for all Jewish religious school teachers in the city to be held today and tomorrow.

Purim will be observed this year with a dinner on Wednesday evening, March 12, in the vestry.

Herbert Hill, assistant city editor of the Indianapolis News, will address an "all-out" meeting of Temple Young People's League at 8 p. m. this Sunday in the vestry rooms.

U. H. C.

"Where Can We Find God?" is the title of the sermon to be delivered by Rabbi Miller at the regular Friday evening services at 8:00 tonight. Following the services refreshments will be served.

Rabbi A. E. Miller has moved into his new home at 520 N. Meridian St. His new phone number is Li. 8025.

The Editor Chair:

An interesting controversy is going on in the pages of The American Israelite of Cincinnati, oldest anglo-Jewish publication in the United States, over the Ford advertising which the publication is carrying, and which you see in this issue of The Post.

Rabbi Leonard J. Rothstein, of Harrisonburg and Staunton, Va., took exception to the Ford advertising and called an editorial explanation of The Israelite's "pure sophistry." "Your argument," Rabbi Rothstein wrote, "is on a level with those of our people who still sell to and buy from Germany. Evidently, they and you subscribe to the doctrine, 'Business is Business'—that miserable subterfuge that justifies the elimination of ethical principle from the realm of business."

The Israelite answers vigorously, but somehow except in the last paragraph or two seems to beg the question. It argues that if a Temple for instance were to probe the source of income of every one of its members, it might be confronted with an unsavory task. The Israelite further points out that although it accepts this advertising, at the same time it does not hesitate to attack Mr. Ford. That most newspapers publish advertisements from political parties with whom they disagree, is also mentioned. Another point The Israelite makes is that Mr. Ford from the aspect of freedom of speech has the privilege of buying space to tell his side of the story.

I recall that an irate reader last year wrote to The National Jewish Monthly, the B'nai B'rith magazine, and complained about the Ford advertising, and was told that the copy was running under a contract, leaving the impression that after the expiration of said contract, no more such advertising would be printed. I don't remember specifically, but I don't believe that the magazine is carrying any Ford advertising now.

Ford advertising is being carried in probably 150 to 200 Jewish and Anglo-Jewish publications throughout the United States. The best defense of this practice and the only necessary one is that although Ford advertising is accepted this financial arrangement

Comment On J. D. C. And U. P. A.

THE gradual clearing of the confusion from the situation as between the overseas fund-raising groups makes possible some factual comment. In the first place the United Palestine Appeal is asking for parity with the J. D. C. in all monies allocated for foreign purposes. In percentages they are requesting, 42½ per cent for themselves, the same for the Joint Distribution Committee, and the remaining 15 per cent for the National Refugee Service.

Other indications are that the stand of the United Palestine Appeal that monies it receives rehabilitates Jews for once and for ever, while the J. D. C. funds merely feed the same people over year after year, is beginning to have effect to the extent that the U. P. A. request for parity is gaining sympathetic consideration all over the country.

Another indication is that the J. D. C. has not begun to fight. So far it has held off any real comment or refrained from launching its own propaganda attack. This derives from the realization that the J. D. C., still has behind it the powerful men of the nation's Jewish communities, and that until the J. D. C.'s position is actually jeopardized there is little need to do any fighting at all.

Another indication is that when the J. D. C. does decide that a fight is necessary, and that its position of domination is being threatened throughout the country, then shall be seen some real and fancy fighting.

Two Questions

RABBI ABRAHAM'S FELDMAN'S request for editorial comment on the "unrealistic" quotas set by the overseas fund-raising groups, in his editorial in The Jewish Ledger, of Hartford, Conn., which is reprinted in the "Current Comment" section below, leads to two answers both of which satisfy his question completely.

In the first place, no matter how much is raised it will be inadequate, and whatever is raised will always be a black mark on American Jewry. There are 5,000,000 Jews who in one way or another now need some assistance. The Jews of America have been called every contemptible name in the vocabulary, and yet the great majority will this year as in past years give $100, or $150 to their local campaigns, when they spend literally from $1,000 on up to $5,000 a year each on vacations, country clubs, gambling and other essentials without which they could not hope to be considered in the better class of Jews.

In the second place, there is little connection between the goal set and the amount raised. If the goal were set at $100,000,000, American Jews would give just as frugally as if the goal were $30,000,000 or $40,000,000.

Current Comment

Rabbi Feldman Asks for Opinions on "Unrealistic" Quotas in The Jewish Ledger of Hartford, Conn.—We wonder why the heads of the various relief and service organizations for overseas are so unrealistic as to proceed on the assumption that there is an inexhaustible well from which funds may be taken in the Jewish community. We are frank to say that we were startled when the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in one of its news releases totaled up roughly the amounts which it will be sought to raise this year for overseas work. The figures are as follows: The United Palestine Appeal has set a quota of $12,000,000; the Joint Distribution Committee has announced a campaign for $11,250,000; the National Refugee Service states that its minimum needs will be $4,340,000; the American O.R.T. Federation is asking for $1,250,000, and the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society is trying to raise $1,000,000. This is roughly a total of $30,000,000 and is in addition to the millions that will have to be raised to support, however inadequately, our domestic institutions, both of relief, of education and of service.

We wonder whether we are altogether wrong in believing that the leaders, in setting their quotas, have approached the problem without a sense of proportion or with a sense of partisanship (in the best sense) without due regard to the total picture, as well as the total situation. We fear that in making the individual quotas too large (although it is admitted that all the money that can be raised can be used to good advantage) they have possibly overshot the mark and overreached. We shall be glad to have a discussion of this subject by our own readers and shall be interested in the editorial comments of the Jewish press.

Refusal of I. U. Students to Take Part in Hillel Work Discussed by Larry Frommer in The Hillel Banner—Two years ago when the Foundation first made its appearance upon the Indiana University campus, it encountered a number of problems and complexities. We, who were here at that time, called them growing pains. We relished the idea of being pioneers, blazing the wooded trail and overcoming the various obstacles and difficulties. Before us was an omnipresent ideal, a vision of the future—the establishment of a strong Hillel Foundation to unite and prove an outlet for the Jewish student at Indiana University. And for this we strove, and strove cheerfully.

It is now two years later. As we draw our analogy and make our comparisons it can be readily seen that the Foundation has made forward progress during this time. Every student who has taken an active interest in the Foundation has found that outlet and that unity and understanding with his fellows which was Hillel's original ideal.

And with this in mind, we who were its pioneers have reason to be heartened. But at the same time we also have reason to feel somewhat apprehensive and justly so. For Hillel's ideal is being accepted only by a minority.

Visit the Foundation any afternoon or evening and you'll see the same old faces time after time. These faces I believe approximate sixty. There are 300 Jewish students on the campus. Not a very high regular representation is it?

We have a student newspaper. There are at least forty Jewish students on the campus interested or active in journalism and advertising. Yet we have to pull teeth to get enough to write articles and sell ads.

We have a choir. No one in the choir is particularly outstanding. It is composed of those people who best carry a tune. And there are many others who can carry a tune just as well if not better. But we're lucky if we can round up six people to sing at Friday evening services.

My plea is directed to the other 250 Jewish students who have shown little interest in Hillel. We respect your various reasons for not participating in its activities. What we want you to do is to come over here and run it your way. This isn't our organization, carried on by just a few. It's your Foundation as well. You've got just as much right to dictate its policies as we. Among you are to be found some of the outstanding Jewish students on the campus. Won't you share some of this ability with the Foundation? If you don't like the way certain activities are handled why by all means come over to our council meetings, voice your suggestions and then join our committees and plan the activities the way you see fit. You are the majority. We need you. Hillel cannot exist without you.

Auxiliary Leads Women

To the Editor:

The newly established Women's Auxiliary of B'nai B'rith led all organizations in the women's division in their receipts for the President's Ball at the Claypool Hotel, according to a letter from the chairman to Mrs. Raymond Kiser. The auxiliary raised $85.78 of the $710 turned over by the committee to the Marion county chapter. Not so bad for an infant organization.

"Oneig Shabat" will be observed at Temple Israel this Friday evening following the regular services, with Mrs. David Levy hostess chairman and her assistants, Mrs. Ben Becker, Mrs. Jacob Bernheimer and Mrs. George I. Felstein. Study Circle of the Council of Jewish Women, Mrs. Mitchell Thomas, chairman, was held Tuesday with a continuation of the history of the Psalms and Exodus and Current Events, under the leadership of Rabbi J. Marshall Taxay. Feb. 17, the annual stag dinner of the B'nai B'rith was held at the Phoenix Country Club, with David Rubin in charge of arrangements. Feb. 24, Dr. Solomon Feinberg of the American Jewish Committee will be the speaker at the meeting of the Jewish Welfare Federation. National Brotherhood Week will be observed at 8:15 p. m. this Monday at the Y. M. C. A. by Jewish, Catholic and Protestant denominations of the city, with Rabbi Taxay representing the Jewish community. Rabbi Taxay speaks on "Masonry is Democracy," at the dinner meeting of Euclid Lodge 573, F. & A. M. Masons, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris D. Cohen are leaving for a three weeks' tour through Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall (Bud) Kerr and family are now located in Indianapolis. Friends of Isaac Silverstein are glad to learn of his gradual convalescence since his return from Miami Beach, Fla., where he and Mrs. Silverstein had been sojourning since Christmas. Feb. 27, the local Hadassah Chapter will meet at the home of Mrs. David Hoffman, with Mrs. S. A. Silberman, president of the Indianapolis Hadassah as speaker. The Council of Jewish Junior is planning, through the chairman of arrangements, Mildred Phillips and her committee, for an elaborate program and dance May 4. Out-of-town guests will be cordially welcomed. Mrs. Samuel Hantman of Chicago and formerly a Terre Haute resident, is visiting Mrs. David Hoffman.
